The Bavarian Alps: massive mountains, impenetrable forests, and rushing rivers. This region, once considered unconquerable and hostile to life, was gradually seized by the Celts and Romans, who created trails and passes to the south. Here, ever since medieval times, man has been taming what was once inhospitable and inaccessible. This landscape later became a retreat and place of longing for the fairytale king Ludwig II.

We make Ludwig's unbuilt royal dreams a reality! In the exhibition, forest paths become adventure trails, trees and mountains reveal their secrets, and a monastery garden is brought back to fascinating life. We show how man has transformed forests and mountains, and why the myth of Bavaria has its origins in the foothills of the Alps.

Forests, mountains, and royal dreams. The Bavarian State Exhibition 2018 with its focus on the „myth of Bavaria“ will be held in an ideal location: beautiful Ettal Abbey, in the Ammergauer Alps. The exhibition organizers are the Haus der Bayerischen Geschichte, Ettal Abbey and the District of Garmisch-Partenkirchen, in cooperation with Bavarian State Forests and the Bavarian Forestry Administration.
